

From Al Wilson's trust document:

It is and always has been the desire of Al and his late wife, Donna, to support a vision that evolved some fifty years ago [from 2009] Our combined experience in teaching at four universities, working in and with think tanks and corporate research laboratories, with institutions and societies dedicated to the future, and with the ideas of thinkers such as Willis Harman, Carl Jung, Rudolph Steiner, Fritz Zwicky and other , let us to the set of concepts and approaches that we termed EOMEGA (meaning the "great dawn"). At our home in Topanga (called EOMEGA GROVE), were regular gatherings of friends and associates similarly concerned with the state of society and its present trends. We began to feel that the level on which most of us were thinking about present problems was far too superficial. We began to think along different lines and hold meetings with other groups to discuss alternate approaches and processes. The visions and the methodologies which were born then are still alive and though Dona passed away more than a decade ago, those of us who live in those days feel the importance of somehow continuing the EOMEGA vision. It is in this sense that this living trust is written to support, in whatever way possible the continuation of the EOMEGA vision. It is hoped that using what assets and facilities are available, those sharing the vision will continue in the name of all those who have shared this vision and passed away.